IN THE PHILIPPINES.

Manners and Customs in Our New Possessions.

AN OBSERVER IN THE PHILIPPINES: OR, LIFE IN OUR NEW POSSESSIONS. By John Bancroft Devins. With a foreword by the Hon. William Howard Taft, LL. D. With map and Billustrations. Syo. pp. 416. The American Tract Society.

In live course of an extended, if not greatly ged, trip among the Philippine Islands. Dr. Devins brought trained powers of observation to bear on the conditions in our new possessions, and relates his impressions in a breezy, personal, anecdotal fashion that makes for easy reading." If his work has not the authority of the student of political affairs, it has at least the approval, in the main, of former Governor Taft, and is certainly excellent journalism. To the general reader it may seem that the author has given undue space to the inconsiderable efforts to establish Protestant missions in the islands, and it may be regretted that he did not either devote a greater portion of his limited time to a more thorough investigation of rolitical and secular matters, or else leave the strictly religious problems for separate consid-

Naturally, the author devotes considerable attention to Filipino characteristics. Their fondness for smoking and music was made strikingly apparent in the case of a flute player at a concert who managed to keep his cigarette alight without losing a note. So devoted are they to cockfighting that at the fire which destroyed the Tondo district of Manila every man rushed to rescue his combatté, as the rooster is termed, while the policemen and firemen saved the women and children. Even the children gamble, and it is hard to interest them in sport for its An American teacher organized a baseball club for her boys. To her dismay she found them not only detting on the results, but swearing like little troopers. When she reproved them for their profanity one of the lads inquired Teacher, what shall we say when I miss a ball?" Still Dr. Devius takes note of the danger of laying aside one's knowledge of human nature and of the common kinship of men in studying a strange people. If a Filipino is kind to a traveller he is apt to jot down in his notebook that gentleness is a prevailing character; istic of the native." If one of them deceives him, down goes a memorandum to the effect that they are not to be trusted. 'There are too many brick with glass windows in America," Dr. Devins concludes, "to warrant the injudicious flinging of cobblestones against the bamboo shacks along the Pasig River." He believes that what the Filipino needs to see in the American is a spirit of kindness and justice. "When these characteristics shine out in the life of the white man they will be answered by similar ones from the brown man; and the Filipino and the American will find in each other the best that is in

It is apparent that he does not consider that the Americans' best characteristics do so shine out in the islands as much as could be desired. He puts himself on record, however, as commending the soldlers for their generally humane treatment of the natives. He even allows himself to be persuaded that the "water cure" is a harmless, if somewhat painful, disciplinary measure, and that Samar was not made a "howling wilderness" by order of General Smith, but by "God Almighty." He wrestles with the "cantaen" question, and although he found that, almost without exception, the canteen was favored by both officers and men, and that its absence has resulted in a largely increased percentage of arrests, he believes that men who were not accustomed to drinking before enlistment are now able to restrain themselves "far better than before the canteen was abolished." He suggests as a compromise that the canteen re-established, but without the permission to sell beer or light wines.

Dr. Devins had an interview with Aguinaldo, but did not find him prepared with a message for the American people. The former rebel declared himself to be "out of politics," and studying what may be done for the benefit of "his" people. What he thought would particularly benefit them was the establishment of a bankand the issue of a Filipino national currency to the extent of $100,000,000, guaranteed by the United States government, the notes to be loaned to the farmers at a low rate of interest, after the manner of the agrarian banks of Europe. His plan was received "very drily" by the commission, he declared.

The climate he found somewhat trying. Like the little girl whom he quotes, it wasn't the "hotness" he minded so much as the "wetness the effect of the extreme heat upon the natives. although he does not vouch for its accuracy.

A Filipino travelling in Europe died. His family desired to have his body cremated so that at least his dust might be carried to his home. The body, prepared for cremation, was placed in a retort and the customary heat applied. After waiting the usual length of time the attendants open of the retort to remove the ashes. As the cover was removed, the men were horrified to see the lately deceased gentleman sitting bolt upright. To add to their astonishment, the stranger said with a snap in his tone. "Shut that door, I feel a draught!" The main, numbed by a temperature of 40 degrees, was simply revived by the heat of the crematory, which approximated that of his own fair island.

SIR THOMAS PHILLIPPS.

The Eccentricities of a Famous Collector.

From Notes and Queries.

In "Yr Haul" for October, 1873, there is a deal of this discourchy but very interesting sketch for this discourch but very interesting sketch factors, one a National School master at Llandelic, and for some time Sir Thomas's librarian, and the sketch I have picked out and rearranged all that is of general interest. It will, I meagre and lifeless notice in the "D. N. B.".

After the death of dadraynotingk, Thirlestane House, Cheltenham, was to let, and Sir Thomas Phillipps, took it, and at once began to occupied two years' thirlestane. On reaching to country the work of the w likeness of Mary, Queen of Scots. "I'll give you floo for it," said Sir Thomas, and the bargain was struck on the spot. On subsequently learning that it was not that unfortunate queen's was struck on the spot. On subsequently learning that it was not that unfortunate queen's portrait, and was not tworth a hundred shillings, he brought an action against the landlady for the rescission of the bargain, but he was not successful. On another occasion, at Haverfordwest, he happened to see an itinerant photographer at work at a fair. He at once bought the whole business, van and all, and sent the man to take photographs of mansions and castles for him through England and Wales.

He never willingly allowed any one, outside his small circle of personal friends, to see his library. He used to sit at his writing desk until daybreak, and then he would retire to rest till 2 or 3 o'clock in the afternoon, when he would either return immediately to, work or take a turn in the garden and pick some fruit. He was never seen outside the walls of his demesne except in a carriage, and that was very seldom. He had not been inside a church or chapel for a quarter of a century when I was at Thirlestane, for he believed the time spent in public worship to be pure waste. He could not bear a tobacco-smoker or anyone who wore a "Jim Crow" hat. His maidservants were only allowed to go to the particular church that he chose for them. His temper was sometimes quite unbearable. It was fatal to give way to him, and word any fear! No Christened mortal (dyn byw bedyddiol) ever had so many librarians. I was the 120th, I believe.

BATHERS MADE ILL.

Board of Health Asked to Investigate Long Island Stream.

Rockville Centre. Long Island, June 29 .- Mill River, which runs through this village, is causing considerable alarm, and both the local and State boards of health have been asked to investigate the apparent unsanitary condition of the stream. The surface of the water is covered at times with a thick scum, from which an offensive odor arises.

Health Officer Bulson made an investigation, and found that the stench arose from surface drainage and heavy sewage deposited in the stream from a drain pipe leading from Hempstead Village, about four miles away. This, it is said, was supposed to drain storm water

There is a dam near the mouth of the river where it empties into East Rockaway Creek, thus causing the sewage to be deposited along the bed of the stream instead of being carried off into the bay. There were several bathing keles along the stream and they have received most of the deposits. Several cases of illness are said to have been traced to bathing in these swimming holes.

It was stated yesterday that the W. A. Fletcher Company will soon begin in its plant in Hoboken the construction of the first turbine steamship to be built in this country.

The contract for the new steamer, which is to be 200 feet long, with a beam of 55 feet, was received this week from the Eastern Steamship Company, of

WILL GRANT FRANCHISES.

Board of Estimate to Act Under Elsberg Law.

Controller Grout said last night that the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, not having been enjoined by the obstructionist aldermen, will go ahead and grant franchises under the new Elsberg

"I was unofficially told by Justice Blanchard to day that he will sign the order denying the injunc-tion asked for by the aldermen, the granting of which would have prevented the Board of Esti-mate from acting on franchises," said the Con-troller. "I understand that the aldermen have detroller. "I understand that the aldermen have decided to appeal from this decision by Justice Blanchard, but their appeal will not act as a stay, as there is no injunction in force. Corporation Counsel Delany has advised the Board of Estimate that there is nothing to prevent the board from going ahead and acting on the application for franchises, if it wants to. At the meeting to-merrow it is planned to fix a hearing on franchise applications for Friday, July 7."

REGISTER IS SWAMPED.

Says Index Is Behind and Force Too Small.

Business in the Register's office, in the Morton Building, No. 116 Nassau-st., began to increase as soon as Governor Higgins signed the annual mortgage tax law, a month ago. Register Ronner and his small force of assistants were swamped yesterday with the mass of papers turned in to be recorded and filed. The clerks have been compelled to work nightly until long nave been compelled to work nightly until long after midnight recording the papers. Since Monday nearly five thousand mortgages and conveyances have been filed with Register Ronner. He has asked for additional help, but none was furnished.

As a result of the rush, Mr. Ronner says the index is behind, and the examiners and readers have more work than they can clear up in weeks to come.

Lineman. Killed by Live Wire, Had HUDSON TUNNEL TUBES.

To Be Built by Holding Companies -Cars Like Those of Subway.

None of the big Tammany contractors will ge the contract to build the two tunnel tubes of the Hudson and Manhattan Railroad Company. Nor will any other contractor be asked to undertake the work, which includes the erection of big termial stations in Manhattan and New-Jersey. Every part of the work will be done by the Hudson companies, the security holding companies of what ar familiarly called the McAdoo tunnel companies, namely the New-York and Jersey and the Hudson and Manhattan Railroad companies.

The other name for the New-York and Jersey tunnel is the old Morton-st., and for the Hudson and Manhattan tunnel the Cortlandt-st.

The north tube of the Cortlandt-st. tunnel route will extend from Church and Fulton sts. to Montgomery-st., Jersey City, and the south tube from Cortlandt and Church sts. to the same point in Cortlandt and Church sts. to the same point in Jersey City. In Manhattan the tubes will be united by a loop. At Dey and Church sts, an underground passage is to be built, connecting the Church-st. terminal station of the Cortlandt-st. route with the Broadway spur of the subway. The work of building the Cortlandt-st, tubes has already been begun by the Hudson companies, Cars similar to the subway type are to be op-erated in both of the McAdoo tunnels.

AIRSHIP COMES DOWN ON HOUSE.

In Second Attempt to Navigate Knabenshue's Invention Machinery Gives Out.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE TRIBUNE.] Toledo, June 29,-The second attempt of Knabenshue's Toledo airship at an ascension was made this afternoon and ended unsatisfactorily. The balloon descended on top of a house, the machinery refusing to work. The weather conditions were ideal for a flight, there being scarcely any wind. As soon as the engine was started and the propeller put into motion, Knabenshue mounted the framework of the airship, which arose steadily and gracefully in the direction of the centre of the city, at the same time increasing his altitude until he reached about 1,000 feet. Suddenly the machinery failed to respond, and the airship slowly descended, landing on top of a house. The framework was slightly damaged, but no one was injured.
